Dear Members of the PCA Community,

This week and next we are all very busy with final exams and project deadlines and I've had the great pleasure of attending many remote critiques and seeing the strong, creative work that our students have produced this semester, although the second half of it has been spent off campus. Much of the work can be viewed on our website's News section and social media channels and we will curate additional virtual shows to be shared over the course of the summer months.

France's Prime Minister has announced that confinement restrictions are expected to be gradually lifted after May 11, but that leisure travel will be limited to a 100 km radius. If you need to travel further in order to rejoin your home (including in another country) this remains an option, but until further notice you should not make vacation plans outside this perimeter if you are in France. The PCA campus remains closed until further notice, but rest assured that no student or faculty work left on campus will be removed until everyone has had ample time to either retrieve it in person or make arrangements to have it stored or shipped. We will continue to keep the community informed as the situation progresses in France.

Stay well, and stay in touch
